Animal Liberation Week – Precautionary Notice

This message provides a precautionary notice about Animal Liberation Week planned for April 20-26, 2008.

What we know

In Defense of Animals and World Week for Animals in Laboratories has planned the week in April to “expose the plight of animals used for testing and research.” Since the University of California, San Francisco conducts research using animals, this notice is to inform our community and bring awareness of some planned and perhaps unplanned events that may impact our campus.

Again, this is a precautionary notice and we know of no specific threat against UCSF.

What the UCSF Police Department is doing:

The UCSF Police Department Uniformed Officers will be conducting extra patrols of high risk locations for the remainder of April. In addition, UCSF Police Department Security will be deployed in other areas that have been identified as high risk locations.

What we need from you:

To ensure the campus is secure, we need the following help from you during the next several days:

- Ensure all personnel wear their UCSF Identification Card.
- Report suspicious persons immediately to the UCSF Police Department at 9-911.

If you have any questions or need further assistance, please contact me at 502-2301.
